With a newly seated Labor Board and a new General Counsel, we are likely to see a shift in initiatives and priorities which impact union organizing. As the Board shifts to the "right," organized labor is almost certain to reinvigorate organizing efforts in order to protect its market share. Is your organization prepared?

During our unique simulation, the Jackson Lewis team will walk attendees through a realistic organizing campaign, from initial card-signing to election day. As part of the program, we will assist attendees in developing a "break the glass kit," with effective card-signing communications ready to be utilized in the event of actual organizing activity.
