With Equal Pay Day on April 2, 2019 approaching, many corporations may be grappling with the decision of whether to go public and how much information they should share. Equal Pay Day was originated by the National Committee on Pay Equity (NCPE) in 1996 as a public awareness event to illustrate the gap between men's and women's wages. More and more employees, shareholders and the public at large are asking employers how they stack up when it comes to equal pay. The U.K. pay reporting requirement and Salesforce CEO, Marc Benioff's prime time declaration to close the pay gap in his company, pulled back the curtain on compensation. Join us to discuss whether and what you should (or shouldn't) disclose.
