In this webinar, attorneys will be focusing on understanding the distinction between contractors and employees. This will include the re-characterization of a contractor into an employee as well as from an employee into an independent contractor. Despite the risks of re-characterization, the use of independent contractors has increased significantly. The rise of the on-demand economy has led to an increase in litigation, with the qualification of contracts and work agreements as the central issue. Join this webinar to better manage the related risks for your business and ask the questions you always wanted to ask.
