We continue to see an uptick in union petition filing and the win rate for unions in certification elections continues to be historically high. Is your organization prepared?

With the November presidential election months away, the current Labor Board is acting with a sense of urgency in reversing/modifying prior administration rulings and initiatives. The Board has shifted to the right, and as a result, organized labor has reinvigorated organizing efforts to protect its market share.

During our unique simulation, the Jackson Lewis team will walk attendees through a realistic organizing campaign, from initial card signing to election day. As part of the program, we will assist attendees in developing a “break the glass” kit, with effective card-signing communications ready to be utilized in the event of actual organizing activity.
