COVID-19 has had a profound impact on the industries most accountable for creating products and solutions that will impact the public during this crisis. For pharmaceutical, medical technology and other life sciences companies, retaining and engaging talent, as well as balancing back to school, work from home and travel demands present unique opportunities and challenges.

Hear from in-house senior counsel as they discuss innovative industry responses, practical considerations and lessons learned to maintain a productive and engaged workforce. Topics include:

- Return to work and back to school
- Employee travel
- Employee morale, productivity and retention
