

Reimagine the Workplace

Since March of 2020, a workplace model several centuries in the making in the U.S. and globally has become destabilized. COVID-19 has impacted all of us, regardless of industry, location, or employer size.

Overview

Today how we define the workplace includes being open to thinking differently about how and where employees will perform essential job functions and how employers can ensure that performance remains efficient and effective. As employers are compelled to confront labor shortages and a barrage of legislative and regulatory changes and updates at a moment's notice, our workplace continues to evolve creating even more complexity. When it comes to the brave new workplace, Jackson Lewis attorneys take being your partner more seriously than ever. Keep up to date with the latest available information and resources here.
