Sexual harassment prevention training is required by Connecticut law.

Nearly all employers in Connecticut now have to provide sexual harassment training to employees. The law requires employers of all sizes to provide two hours of sexual harassment training to supervisors and managers within six months of their date of hire or promotion. Employers are recommended to provide updated training at least every three years to all employees.

Please have your supervisors and managers join Jackson Lewis P.C. for a webinar which satisfies your organization's compliance obligations and focuses on educating managers on their particular role in the prevention of harassment and discrimination. The session will meet all of the statutory requirements and provide an opportunity for interacting with the presenter.

This program is intended for bona fide members of management. Jackson Lewis reserves the right to limit attendance or deny registration at its discretion.
