The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) announced on April 27, 2011, that it had officially ended the NSEERS registration process.

NSEERS (National Security Entry-Exit Registration System) was a special program that required citizens of certain countries to undergo secondary inspection upon arrival in, and to complete additional registration upon departure from, the United States. Those countries included Iran, Iraq, Libya, Sudan, Syria, Afghanistan, Algeria, Bahrain, Eritrea, Lebanon, Morocco, North Korea, Oman, Qatar, Somalia, Tunisia, the United Arab Emirates, Yemen, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Bangladesh, Egypt, Indonesia, Jordan, and Kuwait.

The new automated DHS systems that capture arrival and exit information of all travelers, regardless of the country of origin, made NSEERS redundant.

DHS continues to reserve the right to subject travelers and their baggage to secondary inspection; however, such screenings would now be based on a variety of factors rather than on nationality alone.

©2020 Jackson Lewis P.C. This material is provided for informational purposes only. It is not intended to constitute legal advice nor does it create a client-lawyer relationship between Jackson Lewis and any recipient. Recipients should consult with counsel before taking any actions based on the information contained within this material. This material may be considered attorney advertising in some jurisdictions. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome.
Otieno B. Ombok
Principal
New York Metro
White Plains 914-872-6895
Email