As a litigator, Matthew has defended companies against claims of employment discrimination, harassment, retaliation, unpaid wages, breach of contract and whistleblowing. He is an experienced advocate at the trial and appellate levels of federal and state courts, in arbitration, and at administrative agencies, such as the EEOC, OSHA, Division of Human Rights and Department of Labor. He works regularly with clients in the construction, healthcare, hospitality, manufacturing, professional services, and retail industries.

As an advisor, Matthew partners with management and boards of directors to help clients avoid, minimize and manage legal risks. He is regularly called on to provide advice regarding highly sensitive matters, such as internal investigations, employee relations, and other issues that arise in the workplace. Matthew also serves as e-discovery counsel. In this role, he manages complex document review projects in connection with litigation as well as investigations.

Matthew was born and raised in Syracuse, New York. In his free time, he can often be found coaching, playing, or watching soccer, or volunteering for his local youth soccer club. While attending law school, Matthew was elected editor in chief of the Hofstra Labor & Employment Law Journal. He also clerked in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of New York as well as Nassau County Supreme Court.
