Garrett A.D. Gee is an associate attorney in Jackson Lewis P.C.'s Boston, Massachusetts office. Garrett's results-driven approach to employer representation emphasizes partnership and proactive strategies, combining regulatory compliance with risk avoidance to drive overall business success.

Garrett is committed to preventing workplace disputes through proactive advice, pre-suit employee investigations, and counseling on everyday labor and employment issues. He is dedicated to delivering practical and reliable solutions to legal disputes, while minimizing long-term disruptions. Garrett's litigation style is focused on aligning with his clients' business goals, ensuring that legal strategies support overall business objectives. He has a robust track record of vigorously defending employment claims for both public and private sector employers in federal and state courts, as well as before administrative agencies. His areas of focus include wage and hour, discrimination, retaliation, contract, and defamation claims.

Before joining Jackson Lewis, Garrett served as a Judicial Law Clerk on the Rhode Island Supreme Court's Trial Court Law Clerk Department for Associate Justice Brian Stern, who handles business-related and complex litigation. During law school, Garrett was an active member of the Moot Court team and served as president of the LGBTQ+ Alliance. A former collegiate runner, Garrett continues to enjoy participating in road races and triathlons.
