Sean C. Herring is a principal in the Chicago, Illinois, office of Jackson Lewis P.C. and Co-chair of the firm's Transportation & Logistics industry group. His practice focuses on employment litigation and counseling matters.

With over 20 years of litigation experience, Sean defends employers before federal and state courts and administrative agencies throughout the country. He has extensive experience as a litigator representing a wide range of clients, from major corporations, higher education institutions, national hotel chains, banks, and franchise restaurants to small and local businesses, in employment litigation matters, including claims brought under the ADA and FMLA, and for race, age, religion, national origin, and sex discrimination, sexual harassment, retaliatory discharge, and wage and hour violations. His class action, collective action, and multi-plaintiff experience includes suits by both private parties and by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in areas of alleged discrimination, harassment, wage and hour violations and hostile work environment claims.

Sean is part of the firm's Biometric Privacy Litigation group. He has represented employers in several BIPA class action lawsuits and regularly provides counsel to clients regarding the Act's requirements.

Sean also helps clients reduce the risk of employment litigation. Sean routinely advises clients on a variety of employment issues, including leave management, drafting employment contracts, employee handbooks and personnel policies. Additionally, he conducts Diversity and Inclusion and employee training seminars as well as high level workplace investigations.

Prior to joining Jackson Lewis, Sean was a litigation associate at a large, national law firm headquartered in Chicago and an extern to the honorable Sidney I. Schenkier, Presiding Magistrate Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois. During law school, he served as managing editor for the Loyola Consumer Law Review. He was also a member of the American Bar Association's National Moot Court Team.
