

Workplace Safety and Health

A principal responsibility of federal safety and health agencies is to enforce laws that protect employees. Because of this enforcement mandate, employers routinely face unexpected and intense regulatory scrutiny. Rather than waiting for a sudden visit from OSHA or another agency, employers should proactively monitor and ensure compliance with all applicable safety and health laws. In addition to following the law, organizations can benefit from improving workplace safety to satisfy the needs and demands of workers and customers, as an unsafe workplace can be devastating to employee morale and public opinion.

With experienced workplace safety and health attorneys located strategically throughout the nation, Jackson Lewis P.C. is well-positioned to serve all an employer's needs with respect to safety and health programs and compliance issues. In situations where preventive measures are not enough to reduce exposure, we work collaboratively with our clients' legal teams, as well as medical, scientific and engineering experts, and, where necessary, public relations professionals to minimize reputational harm and legal liability.

Services

- Facilitating on-site safety and health audits for compliance with federal and state occupational safety and health requirements;
- Assisting with the creation and implementation of workplace safety programs and policies, training and enforcement processes;
- Reviewing compliance with recordkeeping requirements;
- Handling all aspects of client representation associated with inspections, citations, hearings and other enforcement proceedings;
- Overseeing workplace environmental testing for asbestos, silica, mold and other airborne contaminants and potentially toxic substances;
- Assisting in response to various workplace complaints;

- Helping clients handle complaints under the multiple laws overseen by OSHA whistleblower investigators and providing advice on how to avoid possible retaliation claims;
- Providing representation during agency rulemaking proceedings;
- Providing crisis management and risk reduction counseling, including responding to significant accidents, explosions, fires and chemical releases; and
- Counseling on federal OSHA and MSHA compliance and advising clients during on-site OSHA and MSHA inspections and enforcement actions, as well as other federal and state agency actions.

Courtney M. Malveaux

Principal

Richmond

804-212-2862

Courtney.Malveaux@jacksonlewis.com

Melanie L. Paul

Of Counsel

Atlanta

404-586-1869

Melanie.Paul@jacksonlewis.com

jacksonlewis.com/practice/workplace-safety-and-health

©2023 Jackson Lewis P.C. This material is provided for informational purposes only. It is not intended to constitute legal advice nor does it create a client-lawyer relationship between Jackson Lewis and any recipient. Recipients should consult with counsel before taking any actions based on the information contained within this material. This material may be considered attorney advertising in some jurisdictions. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome. Reproduction of this material in whole or in part is prohibited without the express prior written consent of Jackson Lewis P.C., a law firm focused on labor and employment law since 1958. Our 950+ attorneys located in major cities nationwide help employers develop proactive strategies, strong policies and business-oriented solutions to cultivate high-functioning workforces that are engaged, stable and diverse.